

Class 4 Weekly News

This week, Class 4 have completed our Endurance (Adventure) narratives based on Shackleton's journey to Antarctica which turned into a battle to survive. (see below a photograph of our working wall for this unit). This week, we have also completed our double page topic spreads where we produced an advertisement to join a research ship on a voyage to Antarctica in 2023. In these, we demonstrated all of the geographical knowledge that we have learnt during this half term. In Art this week, we also finished our watercolour paintings based on wildlife and scenery in Antarctica. Well done Year 5 and 6 for a fabulous week. Wishing everyone a very Merry Christmas

Friday 9th December 2022
 WALT: Write a final copy.

Watching over Endurance from the crew's nest, Frank Hurley the photographer onboard - captured eye-opening landscapes that he had only imagined of. Charles Green was whipping up one of his most gamy meals as the wind howled and the crew groaned. Shackleton was thinking about seeing the South Pole.

Frank Hurley thought: 'Would we crash into pack ice? There was an enormous field of glistening ice ahead of them. A maze of bitter ice harassed victims in its path and conquered the innocent deep blue. Endurance bravely battled on their over 700 miles of jagged like pack ice but the crew knew that the dangerous forms of ice would stop them. The crew held hopes they had faith.

Days later, after pushing through the immense ice, Endurance came to a halt. Shackleton demurred the hard working crew to the deck. Hurley brought his camera. Macklin (the expedition surgeon) brought his first aid kit. Important to be supplied by the harsh ice. Shackleton ordered to move onto the ice. They remade Endurance their comfortable, temporary home for the winter. Hopefully they will have better luck in the Spring.

Friday 11th December 2022
 to write a final copy.

Shackleton was looking through the open door with Endurance's bow reflecting back at him as he saw the ship's name. Frank Hurley the photographer was hanging from the rigging and was taking pictures of the approaching iceberg. Shackleton was looking at the mountainous wall through the snow of Antarctica.

Frank Hurley (the ship's doctor) was looking at the iceberg and was looking at the iceberg. He was looking at the iceberg and was looking at the iceberg. He was looking at the iceberg and was looking at the iceberg.

Nights later, after battling through over 700 miles of pack ice, the crew realised that during the night the ship had come to a halt. Shackleton ordered the boat with some other important men. Shackleton ordered a dead mule and Macklin brought his first aid kit. Green brought the first aid kit. Green brought the first aid kit. Green brought the first aid kit.

Friday 11th December 2022
 to write a final copy.

Shackleton was looking through the open door with Endurance's bow reflecting back at him as he saw the ship's name. Frank Hurley the photographer was hanging from the rigging and was taking pictures of the approaching iceberg. Shackleton was looking at the mountainous wall through the snow of Antarctica.

Frank Hurley (the ship's doctor) was looking at the iceberg and was looking at the iceberg. He was looking at the iceberg and was looking at the iceberg. He was looking at the iceberg and was looking at the iceberg.

Nights later, after battling through over 700 miles of pack ice, the crew realised that during the night the ship had come to a halt. Shackleton ordered the boat with some other important men. Shackleton ordered a dead mule and Macklin brought his first aid kit. Green brought the first aid kit. Green brought the first aid kit.